Why Canada Needs More Money

UP to date the war has cost Canada about $700,000,000.

Canada has spent in Canada over $400,000,000 on her own account.

Canada has spent in Canada on behalf of Great Britain over $300,000,000.

What Canada spends for Great Britain is really loaned to Great Britain and will be repaid or credited to Canada later on.

Great Britain needs so much ready cash to finance her own expenditures at home for herself and for our Allies that she must buy on credit from Canada, and from every other country where she can get credit.

Of course Great Britain's credit is so good that other countries, in order to get her trade, are quite as willing to give her credit as we are in Canada.

Canada wants to help Great Britain not only because Canada wants Britain's trade but because we are Canada and she is Great Britain—both members of the same great Empire, kin of our kin, our motherland.

For Canada it is both a filial and patriotic duty to supply Great Britain's war needs and remember, her needs are our needs. Also it is in Canada's self-interest to supply those needs and thus keep open a market for our products.

Now, Britain needs our wheat, our cheese, cattle, hogs, and many manufactured articles.

Canada also needs many of these things—between the two it amounts to more than a million dollars a day in cash.

And the producers must be paid in cash.

Neither Canada nor Great Britain could go to a Canadian farmer and buy his wheat or his cattle on credit.

The farmer and all other producers might be ever so willing to give their country credit but they could not do it because they have to pay cash for wages, for rent, materials, etc. They must be paid in cash, or its equivalent.

So Canada says to Great Britain:—"I will lend you the money so that you can pay cash to Canada's producers for what you want.

"I will borrow this money from our own people just as you borrow money from your people.

"I will also borrow from the people of Canada money to pay cash for all the products that Canada, as well as Great Britain, needs in Canada."

That is Canada's practical, patriotic part in helping to win the war.

Without this credit the Canadian producer could not sell to Great Britain, and without these Canadian products the war would be prolonged.

So it is necessary for Canada to give to Great Britain the credit in order that Canada's own producers, who need a market, will have one; and in order that Great Britain which needs the products to win the war, will get them.

Now how does Canada get the money by which both Canada and Britain can pay cash for Canada's products?

By borrowing it from the people of Canada through the sale of Canada's Victory Bonds to be offered in November.

That is why Canada's Victory Bonds are offered to the people—to raise money to help to finish the war.

"Canada must keep her shoulder to the wheel even though it be a chariot of fire," and the way for Canada to keep her shoulder to the wheel is by buying

The Squire's Sweetheart

BY KATHARINE TYNAN

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

Having said it, she remembered that Dolly must not hear the story connected with Les Peupliers, and hurried on to cover the lapse.

"No one has business this way but the shepherd. We cannot even throw the message on to the park. Who would come round the outer walls of this place to pick up a message with a stone attached to it? No one. Be quiet, love; I have a better way."

"Hurry, then," said Dolly. "Remember that someone is in torture. Oh, Kate, what Mr. Meyrick must be enduring! When I think of it I feel as though I must die with sorrow." That was the thing Mrs. Bartlett had to do, to keep Dolly from considering her lover's anguish and despair. Now and again she turned aside to think of her brother's trouble about her disappearance.

"Even Louis will not be able to console him," she said. "She will not be sorry that I am gone, however I am gone. Louis always hated me."

"It is only a few days," Mrs. Bartlett pleaded. "Trust me, Miss Dolly. You shall return safe and sound to England. Think how glad they will be to see you! The Squire will be wild with joy."

"Ah, but why did you let him bring me here?" Dolly asked suddenly, and with flashing eye. "I was helpless then, under his wicked influence and could not resist him, and he knew it. He made me keep my veil down in the Pullman where the people looked at us curiously. Why did you not denounce him on the boat? At the hotel where we lunched? In the shops where the English people came and went? I tried to call out to the people, but I could not."

Mrs. Bartlett moistened her lips as though she found it hard to speak. Her poor distorted face flushed darkly. But before she could say anything Dolly's mood changed.

"Forgive me, Kate," she said. "I know you did it for my sake. You saw that you could take care of me and bring me back and you would not have a fuss and a row."

"And your name in the papers, Miss Dolly," said Mrs. Bartlett, with the manner of an old nurse. "Mr. Meyrick would not like that, nor your brother. The less is known or talked about a young lady the better."

Mrs. Bartlett had discarded her veil while she worked to clear the weeds from about St. Roch and his dog, and the bush of roses. Her face had no terrors for Dolly. The moment she had won, Kate Bartlett's heart was when she had looked unshrinking at her face, and then, coming nearer, had kissed it.

While they worked Margot came to the door, looked at them and went back again. At twelve o'clock she served them an excellent dejeuner; and they both ate with appetite. Later she prepared the evening meal, set the tray ready to be taken upstairs; wrote on a slate in a large childish hand, "rechauffer," and went off at a great rate just as the coming shadows began to gather over the valley.

It was quite dark when Cooper returned. He seemed tired and depressed as he came in and sat down in the farm house kitchen. Hearing him come in, Mrs. Bartlett came downstairs. He was sitting with his head in his hands and as she saw him the woman's eyes through the veil she always wore in his presence sent him a strange look of compassion.

Without speaking she came and served him his meal.

"Margot is gone, I suppose," he said. "She would not stay here after nightfall for all the world could give her. Poor old devil—I make her come. Not anything strange this time; only that I saved her from a pack of young ruffians who were stoning her. A fellow feeling, my good woman. The Ishmael has compassion for the Ishmael—that is all."

He laughed in a dull way and fell to his supper, while she went to and fro attending his wants between the side-a-manger and the little outside kitchen with the half-glass door.

"Margot scurries off like a frightened hare before the dusk," said Cooper, with a sort of grim amusement. "As soon as ever the dusk comes she sees someone hanging in the woodshed outside—an uncommonly unpleasant thing for her to see. What a cook she is!"

The next day the routine of the previous day was almost repeated. Cooper went out early, was absent all day, and came back with the same baffled and beaten air. Again the sun shone and Dolly worked in the beds of the courtyard, getting St. Roch and his dog quite free of the weeds. She seemed to have a compassion for the battered and dishevelled saint.

"I wonder if he came from a convent garden," she said. "Poor saint! How sad for him! Think of the pious nuns with their innocent faces and demure soft voices, and then think of the poor saint coming here to this place of evil memories; for there is evil here, Kate, though I keep it at bay by my prayers. Since I have gone back to my prayers I am no longer afraid of anything evil. He has lost his influence. It will not return while I pray. If I had not forgotten my prayers he could never have had power over me."

As the days went on Dolly grew impatient. She shook the bars of her cage, crying to get out.

"Kate! Kate!" she cried in a sudden paroxysm of grief. "How long is this to last? When are you going to deliver me as you would say? When I think of what is happening in England I am frantic. Will you let all the opportunities pass by?"

It seemed as though Mrs. Bartlett would let all the opportunities pass by. That first day it would have been easy, if they had known it, to follow old Margot when she went away. After that day she was admitted by Cooper before he went out in the morning. She awaited his return to leave, looking a dismal little object, if his return was delayed till dusk, as she sat in the full light of the lamp in the side-a-manger, watching the door which opened into the scullery with an air of fascinated terror. She reminded Kate Bartlett of some night owl, sitting, blinking miserably in the flood of light.

She had tried to make friends with the little scared looking woman, having indeed a great pity for her raminster terror as the night drew in and found her still at the farm house. She spoke of it to Dolly. "I once saw a little misery of a mouse in a trap," she said, "and it looked scared like all round the kitchen where the cook was bustling about waiting to drown the creature when she had the time. I was kitchen maid. It was my first place, and I let it out. There was a queer row about it. I never could stand a mouse in a trap since. And that woman, Margot, is the very moral of it."

But try as she would she seemed to make no headway towards winning Margot's confidence. There seemed indeed to her mind an impossible barrier, a wall, between her and the deaf and dumb woman. She had not the finger alphabet, and she was met only with gestures of incomprehension when she tried writing to Dolly's dictation, while ever the bright eyes watched her like the eyes of the mouse in the trap, full of a mortal terror and anguish.

In the evening, after, she had gone, Cooper would talk in snatches to himself, to Mrs. Bartlett, to the empty room, if she happened to be absent from it. He was drinking, not whiskey now, for apparently he found it too easy to procure whiskey, or it was more expensive than the cheap potato spirit, mis-called cognac, of the country.

Kate Bartlett began to watch him, a certain terror growing in her eyes. One night when he had opened a fresh bottle of the cognac, she swooped down and took it from before him. She had expected a violent scene—but he seemed to be too amazed to be angry.

"If say, give it back, you—" he hurled an ugly epithet.

Her only answer was to disappear through the scullery door with the bottle. Before he could overtake her she had emptied out the contents.

He caught her by the wrists and the bottle fell and was broken into fragments. His fierce eyes looked into her through the veil. The pressure on her wrists was agonizing. She felt herself turn sick, but her eyes through the veil met his unflinchingly.

He had begun a torrent of violent abuse. Horrible language flowed from his lips. His face was very close to hers. She had an idea that he would lift her and fling her from him, not caring how he hurt her. She did not flinch.

Care of Blankets

Here is a satisfactory way of washing blankets: Slice half a cake of washing soap into two quarts of water. Set on the stove and stir until dissolved, add cold water in a large tub. To this soapy water add four table spoons of powdered borax. Soak the blankets in this overnight. Then wash them in this water, rinse them twice in cold water, wring, and hang on the line. This recipe will wash four blankets. Be sure and use only cold water and they will come out as soft and beautiful as new. A teaspoonful of glycerine, added to the rinsing water, will improve them.

A Valuable Official

He Keeps Cranks From the Mayor's Office

Before a visitor gets to Mayor Mitchell's office, or to the office of his secretary, Theodore Rousseau, he must see Police Lieutenant William Kennel, the most thoroughly established character about the city hall.

Mayors and mayors' secretaries come and go. So do visitors. But not so Kennel. For more than twenty years, and through seven administrations, ranging all the way from Tammany to reform, his cold, light blue eye has given the "once over" to callers on the city father. He can spot a crank as far as he can see one, can judge almost on sight whether he is dangerous or not, and can dispose of harmless ones gently, and dangerous ones with promptness and efficiency.

"We had two of those birds this week," he said to me when I made some inquiry about the subject. "The king of England called this morning, just for a friendly little chat. A dirty looking fellow he was, but harmless. And Tuesday we had the little old lady that owns all the street cars on Broadway. She's been in before—likes to come around and watch her cars keep going by. She says she doesn't care about making money, out of 'em, nor how much people use 'em, so long as the photomaton don't forget to bring 'em back at night. She doesn't like to have her cars left lying around."

There is real need for a man like Kennel at the city hall. Mayor Gaynor died as the result of a bullet wound, and Mitchell's life has been attempted.—Collier's Weekly.

Note and Comment

"Procrastination is the thief of time." This is especially true with regard to individual duties under the system by which the Military Service Act is now being enforced.

Indeed, the provisions of the Act as operated are such that procrastination may be the thief of important privileges, since a limited time only can be allowed for applications for exemption to be taken up by the Exemption Boards.

Canadians are advised to take such action as may be dictated by their circumstances as soon as possible. Reports for service or claim of exemption from military service should be made, whenever possible, immediately. The machinery instituted under the Act will work much more smoothly if all those concerned come forward without delay. In this case, promptness is a patriotic duty as well as being in the highest interests of the individual concerned.

A reminder is being issued that those convicted of making seditious utterances are liable to a fine of $5000 or a term of five years in the penitentiary, or both, under the Defence of Canada Act. It was under this Act that a foreign-born individual was sentenced to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary after conviction in Toronto, recently.

Nations at war require some such Act as this one in order to protect the law-abiding elements of the country from the reign of terror which habitually follows open seditious propaganda, apart altogether from the military question concerned. Canada has efficient legislative protection against such disorder and the officials are determined that, should occasion arise, it will be enforced without equivocation.

Many give until it hurts and then give more. Some yell that they are hurt before they have given anything.

Saves all you can, then save some more, and invest it in the new Victory Loan Bonds.

The country needs the money to carry on the war.

Every family should have one or more of these bonds.

A meeting was held in the Orange Hall, last Friday, for the purpose of organizing this district for a thorough canvass for purchasers of war bonds.

Mr. Connacher, Calgary, gave a talk on the campaign to cover this Province, and some details of the Victory Loan.

A district was formed, comprising 25 townships, with Monitor as headquarters, and a committee elected to carry on the work here. W. S. McCulloch was chosen as Chairman, H. L. Crisp as Secretary, and an executive committee composed of Messrs. Deadmarsh, Hamer, Hayes, Larder, McGillivray and Thompson. On Tuesday, last, Crisp, Deadmarsh, Hayes and McCulloch, visited Kirriemuir, Bideford and Compeer, held meetings and appointed canvassers to cover the districts north and south of these towns.

It has been figured out that Alberta should subscribe at least $10,000,000 towards this Loan, and to accomplish that end every person should do his or her share of the work, and not leave it all to the committee. Talk it over with your neighbors, get them interested, and get them to invest their money. It is every man's duty and privilege to help this work along, not only by boosting, but by buying also.

Every little helps.
A. J. Deadmarsh has given the Secretary permission to use part of his store, as an office, and anyone wishing any information can get it there or from any member of the committee.

The following is taken from a report just received from one of the delegates who visited the towns, for the French Wounded Fund, which had recently been evacuated by the Huns.

"When we reached Noyon and Ham and began to visit the hospitals, I found things in a very bad condition, owing to a lack of supplies. The men were gravely wounded, and nowhere did we find any pillows, any rubber cushions, or any back-rests. In one hospital a man shot in the back was half lying, half sitting, propped up by his own overcoat. In another, the orderly begged for an air cushion for a man wounded in so many places that he could not stand the weight of his own body. The floor was of earth, mills was impossible to procure, and condensed milk almost as difficult to get. The Germans had fouled the wells, and even water was hard to get. I hope that no wounded in any hospital will suffer for lack of things we saw wanting here. But the thought of the hospitals else here haunted me."

It Costs Something

Every line in a newspaper costs the proprietor something. If it is for the benefit of the individual it should be paid for. If the grocer were asked to contribute groceries to one abundantly able to pay for them, he would refuse. The proprietor of a newspaper must pay for the free advertising if the beneficiary does not, and yet it is one of the hardest things to be learned by many, that a newspaper is not a charity in its columns to rent and must rent them to live. To give away rent for anything less than living rates is as fatal to a newspaper as for a landlord to furnish rent free.

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freestone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a bottle of freestone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain. This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards. This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your drugist hasn't any freestone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.

The British Way

The housewife's clue to an understanding of the new meat prices order is the provision which requires the butcher to keep posted in a conspicuous position in his shop the prices which he is permitted to charge for cuts and joints. She need not burden her memory with the wholesale maximum dead meat prices. These are mainly intended to warn cattle buyers, so that they may not give foolishly high prices for the live animal.

The Peace Mask

Trying to Confuse the Minds of the People on the Real Issues

Wilhelmstrasse may deny that it has indirectly communicated its peace offers to the United States or has sent any trial balloons in this direction. It is, however, sending them out in the well-dressed German press. They are trial balloons, but not peace offers. Their purpose is not to affect the judgment or the actions of the government of the United States, but to confuse the minds of the people of the United States and of the other allies as well. The German government must know by this time that it cannot bribe or wheedle the enemy governments. It still thinks it can fool the enemy people.

New York Tribune: You can't persuade a nation, however clever you may be. Habitually to endure the things that Germany has made people of all nations temporarily endure. German diplomacy is neither better nor worse than the diplomacy of any other country. An impossible task has been set for it and it has failed. But the failure should be charged against those who set the task. It is the whole of Germany, not a detail, which is responsible and must be held responsible.

Agricultural Training

Winter Agricultural Courses Liked by Farm Lads

A large enrollment of students is expected at the College of Agriculture of the University of Saskatchewan this year. Greater interest is being shown in the associate courses than has ever been shown before, and parents seem to be making a special effort to get their boys of 16 and 18 years old into this course. It gives farm lads five months of practical training during the winter months, beginning after the business farm work has been completed, and ending just before the spring work begins. Similar courses are being conducted with much success in Alberta and Manitoba, and are proving very popular with farm lads.

One of the commonest complaints of infants is worms, and the most effective application for them is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

Profit on Hogs

Another instance of the profitability of hogs in Alberta is afforded by the case of a farmer of St. Albert, Alberta, who recently sent a carload of 79 hogs to Edmonton stockyards for sale. The net amount received, after paying all expenses, was $3,398.70, which works out at an average price of $42.53. The initial cost and cost of raising them is estimated at $1,500, or about $20 per hog, so that the profit per hog was $22.53.

The Last Asthma Attack may really be the last one if prompt measures are taken. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy will safeguard you. It will penetrate to the smallest bronchial passage and bring about a healthy condition. It always relieves and its continued use often effects a permanent cure. Why not try this long-famous remedy today? Commence its use? Inhaled smoke or vapor it is equally effective.

Messages by Bomb

The problem of communicating when telephone wires have been cut has been solved by one of the warring nations, by means of message projectiles. There are two forms of these message carriers; bombs for communication between the front and the battalion, and regimental commanders led by grenade guns with a range of 550 to 650 yards, and light shells for extending communication back from the infantry and artillery commanders to brigade headquarters which are fired from mortars with a range of 1,300 yards.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, etc.

The French Soldier

One of the most striking characteristics of the French soldier, remarks a recent writer, is the way he has of getting to work again at his trade as soon as he gets home, even if it is only for a few days' leave. Thus, the farmer will pick up his daily work at his little farm almost at the hour he arrives, and the cobble will get him to his last stage to see how many of his old customers he may serve during his stay at home. A famous aviator, on four days' leave, donned his white apron, just as soon as ever he could—he was a restaurant keeper—and was glad to spend his short holiday serving the little coterie of guests whom his wife had kept together—Christian Science Monitor.

War-time Prosperity

After two and one-half years of warfare Canada is this year buying 100,000 new motor cars—almost five times as many as were purchased during 1914 and an increase of 85 per cent. over the normal for 1913.

A Big Increase

Exportation of Pulp from Canada Last Year Showed an Increase of Twenty-eight per Cent.

The forestry branch of the department of the interior, Ottawa, has just issued the annual bulletin on the manufacture of pulpwood. The total value of the pulpwood made in pulp in Canada and exported for manufacture elsewhere in 1916 was nearly $20,000,000, which represents an increase of over 28 per cent. compared with 1915. The proportion of pulpwood manufactured in pulp in Canada compared with that exported in the raw state is steadily increasing. These and other particulars of this important industry are set out in the bulletin which may be had free by any citizen interested by addressing the director of forestry, Ottawa, and asking for the Pulpwood Bulletin for 1916.

"I had a bad itchy lot of pimples on my face which made it badly disfigured. They were inflamed and came to a head, and I could tear my skin as soon as a little heat came near them. I could hardly sleep."

"When I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised I sent for a free sample which did so much good that I bought more, and I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and three cakes of Cuticura Soap when I was healed."

Japanese Airplanes

A sidelight on the resourcefulness of the Japanese mind to improve upon the American design was shed out of some correspondence that has been published in England. The Japanese are manufacturing airplanes at Osaka that will give the Germans a shake up should they attempt to put on the yoke to the Russian neck east of Petrograd. The company started with a capital of 300,000 yen, now they can obtain more capital than they require. If rumor may be relied upon, there are 10,000 young Japanese, mostly of the student class, training night and day for the inauguration of a great aerial surprise.

CLIMBED STAIRS ON HER HANDS

Too Ill to Walk Upright. Operation Advised. Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This woman now raises chickens and does manual labor. Read her story:

Richmond, Ind.—"For two years I was so sick and weak I could not get on my feet. From my age that when going up stairs I had to go very slowly with my hands on the steps, then down at the top to rest. The doctor said he thought I should have an operation, and my friends thought I would not live to move into our new house. My daughter asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had taken it with good results. I did so, my weakness disappeared, I gained strength, moved into our new home, did all kinds of garden work, shovelled dirt, did building and cement work, and raised hundreds of chickens and ducks. I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and these few lines are only a small part of what it has done for the benefit of other women."

Great Natural Resource

Discovery of Potash at Weyburn to Be at Once Developed

Chief Engineer Wagemann, of the Saskatchewan Development Company, who has been in charge of the potash discovery in the vicinity of Weyburn, has selected the location for the first boring. This will be about one and a half miles northwest of Weyburn and the plant is now being assembled there.

A large building will be erected to house the drill and work will go forward with night and day shifts throughout the winter. The engineers are quite optimistic regarding the outcome of their work, expressing the opinion that an extensive deposit of potash will be located and that a large industry will result.

Faultless in Preparation.—Unlike any other stomach regulator Parmenter's Vegetable Pills are the result of long study of vegetable compounds calculated to stimulate the stomachic functions and maintain them at the normal condition. Years of use have proved their faultless character and established their excellent reputation. And this reputation they have maintained for years and will continue to maintain, for these pills must always stand at the head of the list of standard preparations.

Murder on the High Seas

A U.S. Consul on the U-Boat Barbarism

Wesley Frost, for some years the consul of the United States at Queenstown, Ireland, was entertained by the Cleveland chamber of commerce recently, and in the course of some remarks on his experiences while consular officer that to his personal knowledge "ten thousand men, women and children have been killed by German submarines."

"Every month sees losses equal to those of the Lusitania horror," he said. "At this moment the poor fellows are fighting for breath. The ocean south of Ireland is the most crowded highway of commerce in the world. On a fine day, day after day, merchant ships in all directions like a vast parade. As consul at Queenstown for three years ended last June, I reported to our government upon the destruction by submarine of 81 different ships carrying American citizens. I collected at first hand this evidence, verified it, and placed it in legal form."

The witnesses usually came to the consulate straight from the sea, with the chief of port authorities, mingling in their cars. Their statements were carefully checked against one another and against the depositions of surviving officers. I am not here to implant any opinions about the submarine campaign, but to give you facts for forming opinions of your own."

A PERFECT MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are a perfect medicine for little ones. ### A Spectacled Dog

A short time ago, an article was widely published about a valuable hunting dog which had been fitted with eyeglasses for astigmatism. Probably most people who read it laughed and thought it a fake.

The modern science of fitting eyeglasses, however, makes it possible to fit a dog, or any other dumb animal, with a lens which will correct its eyesight. Up to date methods have brought about the invention of instruments by which the error of the human eye can be accurately measured, and lenses to correct the error prescribed without asking the patient a single question. The "silent method" is very rarely used exclusively however, except in the case of the foreigner, or our friend the dog, when no interchange of thought can be effected and the examiner must rely entirely upon the findings of his instruments.—Vellsworth Magazine.

Buy at Home

Every day $100,000 is spent by the people of this province, says a British Columbia writer, for goods brought in from the outside—goods which could be purchased at home in quality just as good and for just as little money. Are you doing this? Can you to remedy this deplorable condition? Do you always ask for Canadian goods, or do you carelessly take what is offered, or, worse still, insist on the foreign article? Create a demand for the home article by refusing to buy the foreign.

The destruction of birds in central Europe, owing to famine conditions, has led, it is stated by naturalists, to a plague of insects in countries engaged in war. This particularly applies to Germany and Austria.

British Columbia Timber

most Unlimited Supply Available for Lumber and Pulp

British Columbia mills have a possible output of 2,500,000,000 feet per annum of lumber, according to an estimate made by the Victoria Colonist. Pulp and paper mills when fully in swing will be able to supplement the products of the east and probably indefinitely supply the demand for paper. In the years 1912 to 1914 not more than five per cent of the foreign lumber export trade on the Pacific was handled from British Columbia ports, notwithstanding the natural resources of this province, which are greater than all the States to the south. The figures, therefore, show that British Columbia, which is in a position to supply the major portion of the demand, is as yet only a small minority in actual trade.

WEAK BOYS AND GIRLS

It is a mistake to think that anaemia is only a girl's complaint. Girls probably show the effect of weak, watery blood more plainly than boys. Delayed development, pale faces, headaches, palpitation, and a feeling of listlessness, call attention to weak blood in the case of girls. But many boys in their teens grow thin and "weedy," and have pimples on the face, showing that they have not enough blood. The anaemic boy is just as likely to become a victim of consumption as the pale, breathless girl with her headaches and worn-out look. Let the boy in this condition catch cold and he will lose his strength and his health becomes precarious.

To prevent serious disaster to those of the rising generation, let both boys and girls be given the new rich blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. You will then see active boys and girls, instead of weakly children around you.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be obtained by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Enormous Guilt

When the country is being combated for money, when everybody from childhood to old age is importuned to save money to loan to the government for war purposes, it seems an enormity of guilt that money by the millions should be diverted from the common store, the common cause, to swell the fatness of private and corporate purses.—Peterborough Examiner.

Tricks of the Air

How the Anti-Aircraft Guns Get the Range

A pilot flying over the lines uses all sorts of tricks to deceive the watchers below. Under normal circumstances they can tell his height to a few feet and will show, too, that they know it by the way they send up the bursts of "Archie" (anti-aircraft gun). Indeed, no matter whether you cross the lines one day at 8,000 ft. and another at 10,000 ft. and another at 14,000 ft., so sure as you get within range there are the six slowly widening rings of smoke at your level—a few feet ahead or behind or all around you. Hun "Archies" are generally grooved in sizes; and though their chief object is barrage and annoyance, men have been brought down by "sighters" and by direct hits at 15,000 ft. from one of those fatal sizes.

The "Archie" gunner judges height by measuring the apparent size of the machine's wings as it flies above. He knows every machine at a glance at 10,000 yards distance and farther. He gets plenty of practice. He knows the measurements of every machine and its speed and can allow for it. The Hun "Archie" gunner has reason to be peculiarly efficient—he gets so much practice.

"Me und Gott"

The Kaiser Is the Whole Business in Kaiserland

Ever since 1640 and particularly since 1713, the people of Prussia have lived under a rigorous discipline and have been taught that their principal duty consists in worshipping their ruler, in obeying implicitly his commands and those of his underlings, and in paying their taxes. Even now the German ruler is sacrosanct and stands high above the Deity. God takes merely the second place in the German scheme of state. That may be seen from the fact that, while there are many prosecutions for lese-majesty in Germany, there are very few for blasphemy. Besides, what, according to the German penal code, blasphemy, a verbal insult offered to God, is punishable with imprisonment from one day to three years, simple lese-majesty, a verbal insult offered to ruler, is punishable with imprisonment from two months to five years. The difference is characteristic and highly significant. Ellis Baker in The Nineteenth Century.

Reventlow's Dream Is Changed Count von Reventlow, who inspired the "Hymn of Hate" and is one of the most vitriolic upholders of Junkerdom, has struck a melancholy note about the war.

On the advent of the fourth year of the war he tries to cheer his stalwarts thus: "In the heroic days of 1914, God gave us as our daily bread a daily victory. We must fan into flame once more the glorious enthusiasm of those days. Our toasts, both in material things and in human life, have been great. Terrible, too, is the havoc the war has wrought in our political, moral, and religious life at home. The high aspirations of the early days have been lost themselves away to ashes. The spirit at the front, alas! has no longer its counterpart in the spirit at home. Party feeling is making men distasteful to the cause. Democracy first and foremost is their cry, and they and our enemies will one day laugh at them for it."

New Burglar Alarm

Under the trade name of "The Electric Eye," an inventor has produced a new burglar alarm. It consists of a small cell which will give a signal when illuminated by the flame of a match or electric torch. The cell is small and can easily be hidden in the decorations of a safe or piece of furniture and covered with glass. The advantage claimed over the ordinary burglar alarm is that the device will operate as soon as a light is introduced into the dark room, whilst other alarms have to be excited by the breaking of an electric circuit or by mechanical vibrations.

GIVING EYES TO THE BLIND

Of all the scientific marvels incident to the reconstruction of wrecked humanity, that of providing eyes for the blind seems the most wonderful.

Yet it is declared that Dr. Fourier d'Albe has perfected an electro-optical device by which it is actually possible to enable blind persons to read ordinary letter press by ear. The printed sheet is placed over a slab with an aperture upon which is projected a beam of light from an illuminated disc. By means of selenium exposed to the light reflected from the type sounds are produced which vary with the form of the letters. These sounds are carried into a telephone instrument.

This instrument has an apparatus for magnifying the sounds and thus magnified they are conveyed to the ear.

In short, each letter is given its own particular sound by this process. It is declared that the totally blind person may in three or four days learn the alphabet as thus produced and that in a comparatively short time he will be able to read at the rate of 25 to 30 words a minute. The device has been tested to a considerable extent with blind soldiers.

CANADIAN FORESTRY UNITS PLAY IMPORTANT PART AT THE FRONT

SUPPLYING TIMBER FOR ROADS AND DUGOUTS

Two Canadian Forestry Companies are Now Working in the French Army Territory, Clearing Timber From Ground but Recently Captured From the Enemy

The militia department has received two interesting reports covering comparatively recent operations in France of Canadian railway and forestry corps. In regard to the latter, it is said, that twelve new companies of the Canadian forestry corps have arrived in France, making a total of 42 now in the country, with a total strength of 270 officers and 2,233 other ranks. These figures do not include the second Canadian construction company (colored) 11 officers and 420 other ranks. A very large quantity of mill machinery and logging equipment has been received.

The report states that the sixth company situated in the English army area, continues to increase its output. The production of the companies in this area proved of great value during the Vimy and Messines attacks, a large quantity of timber of all descriptions having been supplied for roads, dugouts, gun emplacements and mining operations.

Two newly-arrived Canadian forestry companies have been dispatched to the French army area where operations have commenced in a forest which was a short time ago held by the enemy, who had a sawmill. There are still on the ground a large number of trees felled by Huns, who had been driven from the territory before they could convert them into lumber. It has been established also that the German army has been in the habit of sending logs from this front to Germany. The operations of these companies will be within a few kilometres of the firing line and it has been necessary to have all men equipped with, and trained in the use of gas helmets. They have also been equipped with steel helmets.

The report on the Canadian railway troops stated that during the month of July alone these forces located 82 miles of the narrow gauge railway and 21 miles of wide gauge. In addition, they ballasted over 100 miles of railway and kept other lines in repair. During the month nearly 300 miles of railway line was being maintained by this force which numbers approximately 8,000 men. Casualties during the period totalled 3 officers and 86 men. The report states that a number of battalions engaged in narrow gauge work were employed close behind the lines. This necessitates the railway lines being constructed close up to the firing line and on account of the increased shelling of back areas on the part of the enemy, a great amount of repair work had to be done.

War Makes "Entente Cordiale" Permanent

French Estimation of English Characteristics Undergoes Complete Change

Three years of war have completely revolutionized the Frenchman's idea of the English character, and have knit the two nations in a friendship which will last forever. This opinion was expressed by a letter written just before he died on the field of battle. The letter was written to a British officer whom the French correspondent had known in peace times and given to the Associated Press for publication. It says in part:

"Before the war, I tried to understand the English so far as a man could, who does not care much for travel and is content to study a people by its works. I had read those books which in France we believed represented the best of what modern England was writing.

"Modern England to me was a very sombre country. I saw it always in my mind with those gray skies that we used to think of (and in that no doubt we were wrong, too) as the habitual sky of England. For such skies united in my mind that I knew. There were heavy storm clouds always low over the England where Mr. Hardy's tragic figures stepped, and where the English doom and an unbroken gray sky over that troubled, unhappy, mismanaged England of Mr. Wells. I knew that France was often unhappy, and often all astray, and yet I knew too, that the old unconquerable Gallic soul was still in the people. But if you knew her only from the works of modern French writers, what would you think? What were you in England thinking before war? I ought to have suspected that I did not know England. Instead I wondered often where was the soul of England that had been so long and so hard written about and boasted of. His words of England showed passion almost too great for words. Were they not the words of a man, or was she unworthy? There were many in France thinking the same as I. We distrusted all politics and judged no people by what their public men said and did.

"And so the war came, and we wondered during the first five days of suspense what England would do. How should we know? We did not know her. I had only known her from the English books and they did not seem to promise much at such a crisis.

"And then your army came to France. I never remember to have seen in any of the English books any such soldiers. I saw your armies. How your modern writers have misrepresented you! I have seen them suddenly changed? Here in the fields and towns of France I found modern England as I knew her, but the English people were not there. I have seen your army in many places now, and it has been like a pageant of English ages and the old English people of the old times. I saw a Welshman in khaki and heard him talk, though I understood little of it; and one night a village of English soldiers came to the front. Your men sat around with the French mud thick on them. I felt myself in one of Shakespeare's own taverns. And I have heard your soldiers' songs.

"This it is that has astonished me in your soldiers, not their courtesy, nor their kindness, though these have astonished many, but their great energy. So that I have always the curious feeling that it is we French, who have suffered much, who are now the stupid, dull people, and you English, who have shown us those great qualities of the English people, Rostand, Daudet and the rest, have loved.

"I have seen English soldiers going down the street, waving to the windows their green trench helmets, like an old musketeer's stuck on his Gacon swagger, great rollicking, uncounted numbers that would have enchanted Rabelais. And these are the men who come to us from that land of gray skies, that fog-bell, rain-soaked, sombre-respectable land that I thought was England. My faith, how little I knew her."

English, Scotch and Irish Fighters

An American recently returned from service at the front with Canadian troops tells of the difference in preparations for battle of the English soldiers as compared with the Scotch and Irish. When getting ready for attack, the English soldier carefully goes over the mechanism of his rifle to see if the locks are working properly, the barrel free of mud and so forth.

The Scot and the Irishman pay no attention to the mud on lock, stock or barrel, but each very carefully polishes his bayonet on his sleeve. The battle over, the English soldier may be observed proudly escorting back groups of prisoners, while the Scotch and Irish come back empty handed. Asked about the matter, the English "Prisoners Never saw any"—Wall Street Journal.

A scientific expedition organized by the Smithsonian Institution and the American Museum of the American Indian, which has been excavating among the ruins of the Hohokum, in western New Mexico, has examined a number of valuable Indian relics dating back to the early sixteenth century.

WESTERN GRAIN PRODUCTION AND ITS FUTURE POSSIBILITIES

CANADA AND THE WORLD'S SUPPLY OF WHEAT

The Three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are Capable of Producing More Wheat Than is Grown in All the Principal Countries of the World Outside Central Powers

It was with considerable satisfaction that readers in all allied countries received the statement made a short time ago by the Institute of Agriculture at Rome that 1917 had seen an increase in the wheat crop of the principal countries of the world, outside of the central powers, of 3.3 per cent. over 1916. These figures were based on returns from Spain, France, Scotland, Ireland, Switzerland, Canada, the United States, India, Japan and Algeria, which countries are this year estimated to show a total wheat production of 1,665,448,000 bushels. At the same time these same countries show an increase in their barley crop of 2.4 per cent.; an increase in their rye crop of 10.7 per cent.; an increase in their oat crop of 19.9 per cent.; and an increase in their corn crop of 25.3 per cent. That such increases should be possible among nations, most of whom are engaged in war, is itself a tribute to the productive energy of manhood.

The enormous total of 1,665,448,000 bushels of wheat is so great that it refuses to be grasped by the human mind without some units of comparison. If this crop of wheat were loaded into freight cars, 1,000 bushels to the car, and each car occupied forty feet on the railway track, it would represent one solid loaded train 12,637 miles in length—more than enough to reach half way round the world at the equator. These loaded cars, without engines, would occupy seven-eighths the entire trackage of the Canadian Pacific railway, known as the world's greatest transportation company.

There is, however, another point of view, and a very appropriate one at this particular period when the agricultural countries are called upon to produce the utmost pound of food. While the countries mentioned have done well their accomplishment looks into insignificance when compared with their possibilities. For instance, the three Canadian provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta could produce three times the total wheat crop of 1916. This statement may seem extravagant until submitted to the test of cold figures. Then we get data like this:

According to the government of Canada there are in the provinces mentioned the following areas suitable for agricultural purposes:

Manitoba 74,216,000 acres; Saskatchewan 32,459,000; Alberta 105,217,000; total 211,892,000 acres.

The average wheat crop in these provinces for the last ten years has been: Manitoba 18.20 bushels per acre; Saskatchewan 18.44 bushels per acre; Alberta 20.19 bushels per acre. The average for the three provinces is therefore, practically 19 bushels per acre. If you multiply the available acreage as given above by 19 you will find that these provinces, if entirely cultivated, are capable of producing a total of 5,128,348,000 bushels of wheat—considerable more than three times the total which is being produced this year, 1917, by such countries as Canada, Ireland, Switzerland, Canada, United States, India, Japan and Algeria combined. The single province of Alberta can produce as much wheat as all of these countries and have more left over than was grown in 1917 in all Canada.

Of course, it is impossible, as a practicable matter, to put every available acre of land in any country in wheat, but if we say for the sake of illustration that one third of the arable land in these provinces is summer-fallowed, one third sown to coarse grains or pasture, and one third to wheat, the proportion that is sown to wheat will produce a greater crop than that already mentioned as being grown here in the countries before referred to.

These figures may be interesting generally for the great comparison which they afford, but they must also carry the conclusion that the world is a very long way from having exhausted its food producing possibilities. Any scarcity of food production which may at present exist is traceable almost entirely to an improper distribution of population. In the older countries the population is compelled to exist on such limited areas that production on a relatively large scale is impossible, whereas in the newer countries such as Canada the population is at yet totally insufficient to bring the country under cultivation. These are conditions which will doubtless right themselves; in fact the process of correction is going on very rapidly, and, whatever difficulties may be experienced in feeding the world during the next few years, there can be no question that they will be solved as soon as sufficient population is found for the great open plains which are still awaiting the husbandman.

Germany and the U. S.

From a Speech by Theodore Roosevelt at Kansas City

"For no nation does Germany feel and express such bitter and contemptuous hostility as for the United States. There is no nation on the face of the globe which they would be more delighted to ruin and plunder. Under such circumstances the public men and newspapers engaged in defending Germany are assailing England and our other allies or in protesting against the war and demanding an inconclusive peace are guilty of moral treason to this country, and while the German-American papers have achieved an evil prominence in this matter the professional anti-English Irish papers are as bad and the purely sensational demagogic and unpatriotic section of the native American press is the worst of all.

"Germany embodies the principles of successful militaristic autocracy. Much has been said about our being against the German government, not against the German people. The attitude of the German-American press and the German-American country in their hearty support of the German government and the practically unanimous support of that government heretofore by the Germans at home shows that at present the Germans are back of the German government.

"They have enthusiastically supported its policy of brutal disregard of the rights of others. Until they reverse themselves, until they cast off the yoke of militaristic autocracy they identify themselves with it and force us to be against them. It is for the German people themselves to differentiate themselves from their government. Until they do this they force us to be against the German people in a necessary incident of being against the German government.

"The Germans govern from above down. The people of this republic, like the people of England, believe in government from below up. In other words, we believe in government by ourselves. The Germans believe in being governed by a few men, not by a mass of people. They are a great militaristic class and a great bureaucratic class. No man who supports Germany at this time can claim to be a real democrat or a real lover of free institutions. He is false to both democracy and freedom."

Corn Is Grass

Corn belongs to the grass family, but it is grass that has taken a full course and has also done post-graduate work in Nature's agricultural college. Other grasses develop seed at their tops. Even kangaroo corn and broomcorn follow this plan. But in grain corn, or maize broke away from the grass tradition and started developing its seed in ears coming from the joints.

When corn developed this habit it rang the bell of civilization and started a new era. For corn was a native to the civilized world until America was discovered. Here the Indians were found cultivating the strange cereal in their primitive way.

When the white man acknowledged the corn, and took up its cultivation, he ploughed the ground deep with his metal ploughs and cultivated it carefully. The corn, astonished at this attention, waded in to show what it could do in return. The results are seen today in the three billion bushel crop the United States produces.

He—On the street today a very handsome young lady smiled at me.

She—I wouldn't feel badly about it. There are some men who look even funnier than you do.

COPENHAGEN
CHEWING TOBACCO

One of the reasons why Copenhagen Chewing Tobacco is becoming more and more popular is, because it does not attract attention in the mouth.

It is not chewed; on the contrary, a small pinch is placed in the mouth between the lower lip and gum.

This gives complete satisfaction without chewing, and leaves pleasant, cool aftertaste.

Copenhagen Chewing Tobacco is scientifically prepared, of the best oil, ripe, high flavored leaf tobacco.

It is in the form of small grains, and being very rich, only a small quantity should be placed in the mouth.

"It's the most economical chew."

Will Class One Provide The One Hundred Thousand Men?

It will be greatly to the advantage of Canada if the entire quota of 100,000 men to be raised under the Military Service Act can be secured from the first class; that is, from the men between the ages of 20 and 34 who were unmarried or widowers without children on July 6th, 1917.

This is almost self-evident for the following reasons:

It is admitted that, between the ages of 20 and 34, the average man is at the height of his physical strength and is most adaptable to the change of conditions from civilian life; the military service of unmarried men and widowers without children would occasion less distress than that of most others, since they are largely without dependents. Also, it would entail less financial burden for Canada, through separation allowances, etc.

Authorities estimate that, after all proper exemptions have been allowed, Canada should be able to produce from the first class 100,000 men fit for service, so the drain upon the man power of the country will not be severe.

Members of Class One will be well advised to present themselves for examination immediately to the Medical Board in their district. Upon examination as to their physical fitness, they will be placed in one of the following categories:

- Category A—if fit for service in overseas fighting units.
- Category B—if fit for service overseas in Army Medical Corps, Forestry Battalion, etc.
- Category C—if fit for service in Canada only.
- Category E—if unfit for military service of any nature.

If not placed in Category A, the applicant will know that he is not liable for immediate service, but will go to the Post Office and send in a claim for exemption with his Medical Certificate attached, when he will receive in due course a certificate of exemption until those in his medical category are summoned for service. Where a man, who is placed in category A, feels that exemption should be allowed, an application form can be secured from the postmaster. This form, when filled in, will be forwarded by the postmaster to the registrar of the district, and the applicant will be informed by mail as to the time and place for the consideration of his application by the Exemption Board.

Issued by The Military Service Council.
